

2025 Stahlman Beekeeping E-mail Notes Issue #20a

We have experienced an early honey flow here in North Carolina but in many areas and regions, honey flows are underway now. If you get the American Bee Journal, I have been privileged to write the Basic Beekeeping Column for this past year. The June issue is going to be my last article and it is titled Wellness Checks for June.

Let me say after many years of keeping bees and having articles written for both Bee Culture Magazine and The American Bee Journal and this weekly newsletter which is now in its 7th year, I am still finding something to write about but on a small scale. I have taken over 50,000 photos -- a whole box full of pre digital photos and very grainy when reproduced. I depend upon photos to give me ideas. I have my photos cataloged into 111 topics which I draw on when an idea pops into my mind.

I have a very active speaking schedule and quite frankly, get a lot of information from groups I speak to, and I owe a lot to those individuals who ask me questions because those triggers ideas. Next week article will be delayed until May 26 because I have meetings scheduled almost daily from Tuesday thru Saturday from North Carolina to Ohio.

I also encourage any of you that receive this newsletter to contact me with questions. Current ideas are always helpful, and I hope my answers can help you.
