

2025 Stahlman Beekeeping E-mail Notes Issue #21a

Issue 21 reports a bit on my last week's activity. It started with a trip to Rutherford County N.C. to give a bee talk on Tuesday Evening and a drive of over 500 miles to Wooster, Ohio. That began a tour of meetings and visits to western, west central, and southeastern Ohio. It was a time to reconnect with old friends. Both Judi and I were able to attend our high school graduation reunions.

It is good to get so many new readers. If you are new, I will be writing articles about summer and fall beekeeping topics which should include information that you will need to help you over winter your bees.

The June ABJ article is the last in a series of Basic topics I will be writing, thus this summer I will add information for those with a need for more advanced topics and include brief PowerPoint presentations to supplement material I present.
